NTOA PFQ Training Plan (4 weeks)

(Using only equipment from PFQ)

Full PFQ Details: https://www.ntoa.org/pfq/

This training plan is designed to give interested operators/athletes a quick baseline training plan to better prepare themselves mentally and physically for their best effort/score on the PFQ. More time to prepare is always better, however, a minimum of 4 weeks is HIGHLY recommended to maximize performance and minimize injury. A “3-day on, 1-day off” schedule is preferred to provide adequate rest and recovery time between intense training days. Recording a daily log as you progress through the program is recommended as a future reference to measure improvement.

Note: “Full gear” represents the same loads and gear required in the PFQ.

To maximize the benefits from this program, a warm up and cool down are HIGHLY recommended for each training day, as well as, a full rest/recovery day. Yoga For First Responders (YFFR) has provided professional instructional videos to accompany this program that introduces operators/athletes to tactical breathing and other rest and recovery techniques designed to improve overall performance, improve flexibility, reduce injury, reduce stress, and make the most of the suggested full rest/recovery days.

WEEK 1

Monday

Day 1 is designed to establish your baseline score. The full PFQ should be performed on this day, regardless of score (In other words, if your time/reps. would qualify for 0 points, it’s okay, continue to get a final time/reps.). Once this first PFQ is completed, it will provide you with a baseline to measure yourself against yourself as you improve your fitness during these 4 weeks. A stronger, more fit YOU starts TODAY!
